Grant all for UFC in Halifax

Bring on the sweat. Mixed martial arts card expected soon at the Metro Centre

ANDREW RANKIN
andrew.rankin@metronews.ca

News the UFC will be heading to Halifax in the not-so-distant future came as a surprise to most on Tuesday, but not for T.J. Grant.

The Cole Harbour native and lightweight star said he's had conversations on the topic with UFC director of Canadian operations Tom Wright long before he made the announcement during a press conference in Toronto.

"In speaking with him in the past, he let me know that UFC was interested in coming here because they thought it was the hotbed region for UFC fans and that it could attract people from all over the Maritimes as well as Newfoundland, Quebec and eastern United States," said Grant.

Wright expressed the UFC's interest in Halifax at a news conference to promote UFC 165, responding to a question that a show would be held in the province's capital "if not in 2014, 2015, the next couple of years for sure."

There's no doubt in Grant's mind it would be a roaring success.

"Absolutely it would be," said Grant, who has a UFC lightweight title bout set for Aug. 31 against Benson (Smooth) Henderson at UFC 164 in Milwaukee.

"There's no doubt in my mind. I have fans all over the Maritimes; there's a huge, growing following here, it would be a sellout in no time at all."

Plans appear firmly in motion.

"I've had conversations with the people that run the Metro (Centre) there," said Wright. "I've had discussions with all sorts of different people politically down in Halifax."

"I think Atlantic Canada is a great spot for our sport... It's the centre of commercial business in all of Atlantic Canada and they are definitely, definitely on our radar."

The prospect of fighting in front of his hometown is about as tantalizing for the 29-year-old Grant as you might expect.

"It's not something I've been able to do a lot during my career," he said. "I'd love the opportunity."

Multi-car pileup

Truck driver charged after 5 people, including 3 kids, hurt in highway crash

Police have charged the 59-year-old driver of a tractor-trailer with dangerous operation of a motor vehicle causing bodily harm after a multi-car pileup that injured five people, including three children, near Falmouth.

The accident happened around 11:30 a.m. Tuesday and involved four vehicles, including a mobile home.

"Road conditions were OK at the time, the weather conditions were clear," said Staff Sgt. Dan Austin.

Austin said an adult man and woman and a three-year-old girl were hospitalized after the crash.

A six-year-old boy and eight-year-old girl were both taken to the IWK Health Centre by LifeFlight helicopter.

The woman and children were all in the same vehicle, and the man was driving the tractor-trailer.

A release issued by Windsor RCMP shortly after the accident suggested the victims had suffered serious injuries, "some believed to be life-threatening."

On Tuesday night, police announced they were charging the driver of the tractor-trailer with causing the accident. The Montreal man will appear in court at a later date.

There have been 13 fatal accidents on Nova Scotia highways since June 2, and 34 so far this year, according to the provincial Department of Transportation.

A provincial Department of Transportation spokesperson said the numbers don't fall when the weather improves.

"We do see more highway fatalities in summer than winter," said Pam Menchenton. "Don't let your guard down just because it's summer."

Naomie Fequiere had an infectious laugh, a comforting smile and a love for colours.

That's what Laura Langille is going to remember about her late friend and teammate.

"She loved colours," said the third-year forward with a smile. "I don't think I ever saw Nay wear a normal white, gray or black pair of socks. They had animals on them, colours on them, bright... That was Nay."

"She was the biggest cheerleader, she just had so much faith in you as a person, you just couldn't help to want to make her proud," said Langille. "Truly, she was just like a sister to me."

Fequiere died two weeks ago in a car accident in her hometown of Miami, Fla. She was 22.

The team was in disbelief when they heard the news.

"When we were first told, it was total shock," said Langille. "We were totally stunned. And just instant tears, almost paralyzed."

Women's basketball coach Scott Munro announced at the memorial the team will dedicate the upcoming 2013-14 season to Fequiere's memory.

"We are all better people for knowing her," said Munro at the service.

Langille says a season dedicated for Fequiere will inspire the team even more.

"Playing for Nay will make us play that much harder, and want to win everything for her," said Langille. "I know she's looking down on us, and she'd be so proud."

Decision. N.S. lawyer who pocketed clients' cash disbarred

A Nova Scotia lawyer with a history of misappropriating cash has been disbarred for wrongly pocketing thousands of dollars in trust money from his clients.

The Nova Scotia Barristers' Society has also ordered Peter van Feggelen to pay $10,000 and ruled he cannot apply for readmission to the bar for at least five years.

In a decision released Monday, the society said the Kentville man deposited $15,000 from a client that was supposed to be held in trust into his personal account in November 2011 and then spent the money.

In another case, the society said van Feggelen deposited $50,000 from two other clients that was also supposed to be held in trust into his personal account last August.

The deposits breached conditions imposed on van Feggelen in June 2010 by a hearing panel after he was charged with professional misconduct for improperly taking about $30,000 from client trust funds in 2009.

At the time, the panel ruled van Feggelen could continue practising for two years under the supervision of another lawyer, who would be responsible for accepting and managing any trust moneys from clients.

The society said in 2010 that van Feggelen was seeking medical treatment for what it described as "severe mental health problems" — issues that it said continue to be mitigating circumstances in his behaviour.

Aboriginal artwork reaches new heights

Heritage. Halifax Stanfield International Airport to live-stream mural painting

HALEY RYAN
haley.ryan@metronews.ca

Next month, travellers stepping into the lobby of the Halifax Stanfield International Airport will be greeted by Mi'kmaq art coming to life above their heads.

On Tuesday, the province announced it will spend $30,000 to fund a special art project at the airport.

Renowned Mi'kmaq artist Alan Syliboy will paint a 15-by-five-foot mural on the upper wall of the lobby between Aug. 9 to 11.

"This is an important gateway," Syliboy said of the airport. "The live-art element of (the project) and potential for a big audience is really exciting."

Lenore Zann, MLA for Truro-Bible Hill, said Syliboy came to her nine months ago and mentioned the art project, but it stalled owing to lack of funds.

Zann then went to the culture and heritage department as well as the office of aboriginal affairs, who liked the project and kicked in the money.

"Showcasing our diverse culture and heritage to visitors encourages them to explore all that Nova Scotia has to offer ... especially the excellence of our gifted artists," said Zann, a friend of Syliboy's for more than 20 years.

Syliboy said he's not sure yet what the art will look like, but it will have a "universal theme."

"Hopefully, this is one step towards that, that we'll be more visible and people will know the Mi'kmaq in this province," he said.

Syliboy is no stranger to large-scale work, with the Beaverbrook Art Gallery in Fredericton displaying a 10-by-10-foot mural of Syliboy's in their entrance.

"Now we have something to rival that in Nova Scotia," he said, adding that he will sketch part of the design on canvas before he climbs the ladder to begin the acrylic painting, to ensure he finishes in three days.

on the wall might be a challenge, he used to paint houses and isn't worried about the height.

"There's no chance for any problems," he said.

The project is a chance to make aboriginal art more visible and celebrated, Syliboy said, as it is in British Columbia.

This August, Cape Breton will get a chance to taste fresh local food with a foreign twist.

Across the island, Right Some Good is going to be bringing delicious dishes to unfamiliar locales. The festival comprises a series of pop-up dining events, where meals are served in unexpected locations.

"We're basically opening and closing a restaurant in a day," founder Pearleen Mofford said at a media event on Tuesday in Halifax.

"(The chefs) truly want to understand what's in season, for maximum flavour," said Mofford, "but they take some twists."

On Tuesday, American chef Michael Reidt delivered a sample menu to media members and guests at Just Us! Coffee on Barrington Street in Halifax. It featured local beef tenderloin and fresh spiced carrots.

new perspective to traditional dishes. They revisit local ingredients and develop them into something new and unique.

Holding pop-up events is not without its challenges, though. Some locations lack running water or electricity. While it's easy to set up a backup generator, facing Cape Breton's weather is a different task.

"In our first year we narrowly escaped a hurricane," Mofford said. "We have every weather network up and looking at every radar screen throughout the festival."

This August will mark Right Some Good's third year of operation. Local musicians will perform at each event.

Feds need to fix up seawall, move boat: Dexter

Ottawa needs to step up to the plate and accept responsibility on several files affecting Cape Breton, Premier Darrell Dexter says.

The Cape Breton Regional Municipality has put forward a proposal that would see the three levels of government contribute to repairs to the seawall. It submitted the proposal to Enterprise Cape Breton Corp. and the provincial minister of transportation and infrastructure renewal.

Ownership of the crumbling 400-metre-long seawall has been an issue of dispute between the federal and provincial governments. Neither has yet committed to funding a short-term solution to fix the structure.

"Obviously, one of the problems with it is that it was built by the federal government and they're getting out of the business of doing work rather than getting into it, and that's a problem," Dexter said. "They keep downloading to the province and we are not as well positioned to deal with these things as well as they are."

The last breach of the seawall in 1982 caused flooding that cut off homes in Gabarus.

Some residents have also called on the province to remove the MV Miner from the shores of Scatarie Island, noting it is located in a provincially protected wilderness area. The Greek ocean-going tug Hellas was towing the MV Miner on Sept. 20, 2011, when its line broke free and the ship ran aground.

The province has maintained the wreck is a federal responsibility. Ottawa has indicated it poses no hazard to either navigation or the environment.

A New York-based company attempted a salvage job but walked away, citing government hurdles.

"Sooner or later this problem has to be resolved ... because it is a public-policy issue that is going to govern the way in which things are going to be handled from now on," Dexter said. CAPE BRETON POST

Cleveland. Ex-captives break silence on YouTube

Three women who police say were held captive in a Cleveland home for about a decade have issued a video in which they thanked the public for the encouragement and financial support that are allowing them to restart their lives.

Amanda Berry, Gina DeJesus and Michelle Knight broke their public silence in the three-minute, 30-second video posted Monday night on YouTube. They said the support and prayers of family, friends and the public are allowing them to rebuild their lives after what Berry called “this entire ordeal.”

The women had gone missing separately from 2002 to 2004, when they were 14, 16 and 20 years old.

In the video, none of the women had any visible scars of the abuse they said they suffered at the hands of Ariel Castro, who has pleaded not guilty to a 329-count indict-

Castro, a 52-year-old former bus driver, fathered a six-year-old daughter with Berry and is accused of starving and punching Knight, causing her to miscarry. He was arrested May 6, shortly after Berry broke through a door at the home and yelled to neighbours for help.

Shedding light on forgotten Operation Husky heroes

Battle of Sicily. Contribution helped turn the tide in WWII

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

Charles Hunter says it “hurts a little” when his Second World War service is ignored.

Hunter, a bombardier with the 39 Regiment Royal Artillery, was one of 25,000 Canadian soldiers who invaded Sicily in 1943 as part of the Allied Operation Husky. It was the first independent role for Canadian soldiers in WWII, and Canada’s strategic contribution helped open Italy to the Allies and turn the tide of the war.

Seventy years later, Operation Husky 2013 is commemorating the Battle of Sicily, which they say has been overlooked by history. The group says a poll of Canadians found 91 per cent didn’t know Canadian troops were even in Sicily during WWII.

“I don’t know why it’s ignored,” Hunter said. “And it kind of hurts a little bit, to feel you get ignored when you’ve done a good job — because we did, we did do a good job.”

Operation Husky — the original one — commenced before the early hours of July 10, 1943.

Allied forces stormed the beaches at Pachino and climbed a 900-metre cliff the Germans had left almost undefended, believing it impossible to scale.

The Allies drove the Germans off the island. Of 25,000 Canadians who fought, 562 had died by the end of the month. Compared to stories about D-Day, little is said about Canada’s role in the Italian campaign.

To right that wrong, Operation Husky 2013 will be commemorating the Battle of Sicily beginning July 10. More than 200 Canadians are heading to Sicily to take part in remembrance ceremonies, including retracing the soldiers’ march across the island, leaving markers in the places Canadians fell 70 years ago.

Canadians killed in Afghanistan honoured

A temporary memorial to Canadians killed during the Afghan war has been erected in Parliament’s hall of honour.

The tribute, using the black granite plates originally installed on a cenotaph at Kandahar Airfield, will travel the country and to Washington, D.C., over the next year in the run-up to Canada’s final withdrawal from Afghanistan next March.

The plan is to have the memorial displayed at provincial legislatures, or nearby buildings depending upon space, and at the embassy in the U.S. capital.

The plaques — 190 in all

— are etched with the photographs of Canadian soldiers and civilians killed during the decade-long conflict, as well as Americans who died while under Canadian command in Kandahar. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snowden off to Venezuela ... or not

He then sent another message saying his claim was based on a report from a state TV channel, which in turn said the lawmaker misunderstood its report.

Lac-Mégantic home to a burnt-out crime scene

Death toll still rising. Police tight-lipped on what they have found or are still looking for

The official death toll in the Quebec train disaster climbed to 15 on Tuesday, with two more bodies pulled from a scorched area police were calling a crime scene.

With about another 35 people still missing, residents of Lac-Mégantic expect the grim news to continue.

Provincial police said they had 200 officers on site performing a criminal investigation.

"There is potential evidence there that could eventually lead to criminal charges being laid," said Insp. Michel Forget.

"I won't speculate on the elements we have recovered because they will be secret."

He said he doesn't believe terrorism is at play.

Earlier on Tuesday, the national Transportation Safety Board said it is performing its own investigation.

The TSB said Tuesday that authorities were never alerted to the fact that a runaway train was on its way to levelling part of the small Quebec town.

Rail dispatchers had no chance to intervene during the fateful 18-minute journey because they didn't know it was happening, TSB investigator Donald Ross told reporters.

"There were no signals nor track circuits, so the rail-traffic controller had no ... indication that there had been a runaway train," he said.

Such systems are in place on busier rail lines but not on secondary lines, said TSB manager Ed Belkaloul.

On Tuesday, Pope Francis sent a blessing from the Vatican to those touched by the tragedy. In a statement announcing that "special apostolic blessing," the Pope expressed his sympathy to victims, their families and emergency work-

Changes on the horizon?

Edward Burkhardt, CEO and president of the company which owns the train, is set to visit Lac-Mégantic this week, where he will likely face outrage and tough questions.

He told the CBC in an interview that the company has already changed some of its procedures. He also suggested that the decision to staff trains with one-man crews and leave them unattended during breaks might have to change.

Questions were also raised about the rail tankers involved in the crash.

The tankers are known as DOT-111 and have a history of puncturing during accidents, TSB investigator Donald Ross has said.

Who abandons a Ferrari? A lawyer in a big hurry

Howard A. Levitt's Ferrari, abandoned in Toronto floodwater. HIRA AHMED/TWITTER

There it was: a silver Ferrari, submerged to its windows in the murky floodwaters of Toronto.

Photos of the orphaned sports car were everywhere Monday night as the rains that pummelled Toronto subsided. It was picked up by news agencies and plastered all over the Internet.

So who would abandon a Ferrari in rising waters? A lawyer in a hurry, that's who.

Howard A. Levitt, one of Canada's leading employment lawyers, was on his way to an important hearing in Water under the bridge

"I don't want to sound cavalier, but at the end of the day you've got to see the humour in it and not sweat the small stuff.... Nobody's dying, nobody's sick."

Howard A. Levitt, one of Canada's leading employment lawyers

Ottawa. The heavy rain had just started and it was hard to see. He entered an underpass following several other cars, each of which easily traversed a body of water that looked no deeper than a puddle.

No such luck for Levitt. His 2010 Ferrari California, which retails for $192,000, rides extremely close to the ground, and despite its powerful V8, 454-horsepower engine, it only took a few inches of water to stop the car in its tracks.

Levitt had been trying to call a tow truck, then realized one wasn't going to arrive in time. So he opened the door, letting the dirty water flow in, and collected his bags from the trunk.

He took a cab to the island airport, found all flights had been cancelled, then headed to Pearson, where he caught "the last seat of the day" to Ottawa.

On Tuesday morning, Levitt won his motion in Ottawa, making the quick escape worthwhile.

"It's a good ending, except for my poor car," he said.

Pipeline CEOs say no silver lining in Quebec rail disaster

Lac-Mégantic. While many suspect rail disaster will boost pipeline support, execs say concerns apply to all Executives with major Canadian pipeline companies say they see no silver lining to the Lac-Mégantic train disaster.

There have been suggestions that transporting oil by pipeline may seem more palatable after several oil-laden rail cars exploded over the weekend, killing more than a dozen people and devastating the small Quebec town.

But TransCanada Corp. CEO Russ Girling said there's "no good news here for anybody" in the tragedy and the notion that the pipeline industry will somehow benefit from it "makes no sense."

Quoted

Russ Girling, TransCanada Corp. CEO

While disasters ranging from Lac-Mégantic to the massive BP oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico three years ago jolt the public, Girling said companies such as TransCanada still have a responsibility to build new energy infrastructure.

"People continue to have needs for starting their vehicles every morning, cooking their food, heating their homes. We have an obligation to do that as safely as we can."

The president of Kinder Morgan Canada, which is planning to nearly triple the amount of crude shipped on its Trans Mountain line between Alberta and the B.C. Lower Mainland, said he too fails to see any upside for pipeline firms resulting from Lac-Mégantic.

"I think that the public is obviously very concerned about the broad safety net that is available for both rail and pipelines," he said.

"I think it's a question of all operators — whether it's pipe or rail or trucking for that matter — (to) continue to be very diligent and vigilant in their safety precautions."

Leaked recording

Murdoch recalled for questioning

Lawmakers will recall Rupert Murdoch to London for more questions about a leaked recording in which he appeared to dismiss evidence of wrongdoing at his U.K. newspaper titles, a senior parliamentarian said. The recording caught Murdoch describing allegations as "next to nothing," boasting his lawyers weren't actively co-operating with investigators, and speaking dismissively of bribery accusations.

Property prices still climbing: Survey

Home prices in Canada are showing no indications of falling this year, a survey by Royal LePage suggests.

A report by the real estate company said the average prices for standard two-story houses and detached bungalows went up 2.7 per cent in the second quarter of this year, compared with a year ago.

During April to June, houses were listed for an average price of $419,614, while bungalows had an average price of $386,547, according to the survey.

Vancouver remains the most expensive city.

BlackBerry CEO says company on the right path

BlackBerry chief executive Thorsten Heins stood before shareholders of the smartphone maker on Tuesday and asked for patience as the company pushed ahead with its goal to become profitable again.

"We are still in the midst of a major, complex transition of this company, and like most of these transformations ... progress can be volatile," Heins told the BlackBerry annual meeting.

Investors generally took an optimistic and patriotic tone at the event, especially given that their shares have been pummelled since the company reported a first-quarter loss less than two weeks ago and its stock

WANT TO KNOW YOUR DEATHDAY?

Another day, another amazing scientific breakthrough.

This one, I have to admit, actually is amazing. And disturbing.

A team of scientists in the U.K. have come up with a blood test for infants that will predict how quickly they will age and how long they will live.

Talk about "born to die."

These scientists have identified 22 metabolites — molecules linked to metabolism — that help govern a host of bodily mechanisms such as lung function, bone density, blood pressure, cholesterol levels, etc.

Putting a positive spin on it, the scientists believe that they will now be able to influence these metabolic factors and treat age-related diseases before they put us on the wrong side of the lawn.

But seriously, do you really want to know when it's over — as

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

soon as it begins? Right now, Canadians can expect an average life expectancy of 81 years, which seems comfortably far off when you're three days old. But what if your metabolites predict a 50-year life span — or worse? It seems a bit unfair to expect someone to start working on a bucket list before he's out of short pants.

How long will it be before metabolite blood tests are routine? Together with genetic analysis, the fate of the child will be sealed before the first car ride home. Career, insurance coverage, diet, hobbies, whatever, will all be based on their metabolic or genetic impact — or both. "Epigenetics" is the means by which environmental factors switch certain genes on or off. So, conceivably, the state of your metabolites will help determine your genetic array and vice versa.

Together they take all the guesswork out of life. Maybe all the fun, too.

If you were still harbouring any notions of free will, it's time to put all that aside and start the grim dance of biological determinism.

It's hard enough bringing kids into the world. If you're lucky enough to give birth to a relatively robust being who will take care of you in your dotage, it's almost worth the investment, but if the poor little gaffer will expire before you're 64, what's the point?

Of course, it doesn't matter what I think or what you think. Medical science marches forward, regardless. Once the genie is out of the test tube, it's not about to allow itself to get stuffed back in.

Still, I'm glad I have no idea what my best-before date is. For all I know, I could be looking forward to a telegram from the Queen when I turn 100. She'll certainly still be around.

Or the wheels could fall off next Thursday. Ignorance is bliss.

Baby, it's cold in the ice cave

In the sweltering summer heat, New Yorkers are ready for the big chill — in midtown Manhattan.

The city's first ice bar is now open at the New York Hilton Midtown on Sixth Avenue. The $20 admission includes Eskimo-style gloves and a parka for the privilege of drinking cocktails in the freezing Minus5 Ice Bar.

The entire bar is made of Promoters say it's all carved out of "100 per cent Canadian ice."

The truth is, it's special, extra-clear "carvers" ice — some from Canada, the rest from Philadelphia, Las Vegas and Minneapolis.

Look at the destruction and flames that carried on for hours. Do they expect to find bodies? Or do they expect to scientifically connect ashes?

Warning signs my . You leave a train that is a potential mega big bomb alone and say there might have been warning signs.

People have lost loved ones and everything they had and this ziggung around to find why the train killed them is disgusting.

Godzilla: a historical movie figure

Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

For someone who grew up watching Godzilla stomp his way through the major cities of the world, the idea of a sea monster large enough to use a battleship as a baseball bat is very exciting. In Pacific Rim director Guillermo del Toro presents the biggest movie monsters seen since the Blue Oyster Cult sang, Oh no, there goes Tokyo, go go Godzilla!

Pacific Rim's monsters are direct descendants of the "kaiju" or strange beasts that became popular in the sci-fi films produced by the Japanese company Toho in the 1950s and '60s. Most famous is the king of all monsters, Godzilla, the giant lizard who wreaked havoc in 29 movies. Rounding out Toho's big five are a Divine Moth called Mothra and a trio of kaiju named King Ghidorah, Mechagodzilla, and Rodan.

The first Godzilla film came in 1954. The story of an ancient dinosaur-like colossus created by American nuclear weapons testing was inspired by a news story about the Lucky Dragon 5, a Japanese fishing boat contaminated after sailing too close to a U.S. nuclear test.

"Suitmation actor" Haruo Nakajima played the beast and could only walk 30 feet at a stretch in the 200-pound Godzilla suit. To create the monster's fearful roars, audio engineers threw reverb on the sound of a resin-coated leather glove rubbed on the strings of a double bass. Ten years after that movie, King Ghidorah, a fearsome alien dragon, was created as Godzilla's archenemy.

Director del Toro too busy to take in a movie

Blockbuster. Guillermo talks making Pacific Rim and making movies in Hollywood

NED
Metro World News in Hollywood

Guillermo del Toro is first and foremost a movie buff, which has been causing him a distinct amount of unhappiness.

You see, del Toro has been so busy making movies — particularly his latest, the giant robots vs. giant monsters blockbuster Pacific Rim — that he hasn't had any time to actually watch other people's movies. Or at least that's the excuse he gives for not having seen Man of Steel or the first instalment of the Hobbit, which he was originally pegged to direct.

There's been a lot of criticism about the levels of carnage shown in Man of Steel. Your film also features a great deal of urban destruction. How do you keep from crossing the line from fun into too realistic?

Well, kaiju movies by definition bring a completely escapist fun in these type of fights. When you're a kid and you're watching Godzilla stomp a bunch of tanks or jets or cut through a city, the proportions of these things are so enormous that you cannot correlate them to anything real. What I do is I then bring in visually a very different sense of style from reality. I have these super-coloured lights illuminating the rain, so it looks like a living comic book or a living anime, you know? And the thing that I do very, very consciously is I vacated all the streets so they would be empty of people. So you're never thinking, "Oh, the kaiju just crushed 600 people." Because the streets are vacated and everybody's in a refuge, all they can destroy is buildings and vehicles when nobody's there.

KERRY HAYES/WARNER BROS. PICTURES/MCT

Have you seen Man of Steel?

No, I haven't. I haven't seen many movies because I've been making one. The only two or three times I've gone to the movies in the last few years have been to movies that my daughters want to see. So I went to Les Misérables and I went to some animated movies — movies that I would not necessarily have gravitated towards. But that's being a parent, taking your daughters to see the Justin Bieber concert movie.

Does that mean you have to go see the One Direction movie later this summer?

No, no (laughs). Actually my daughters are not into that stuff.

Are you planning to do another non-English language film anytime soon, or do you live in Hollywood exclusively now?

Yeah, I would love to. I produce a lot of movies in Latin America and Spain and I'm producing a movie right now in Mexico. As a director I would love to do it, but I need to find a story that suits me. It's not like I have a drawer full of stories in Spanish and in English.

What determines if a story is better told in Spanish rather than English?

You cannot aspire to do a movie that is as quirky as Pan's Labyrinth in the Hollywood machinery. It would get tested and noted by executives to death. It would end up having a happy ending and all that bulls—, you know? And at the same time you cannot end up with a movie that is as spectacular and huge and magnificent in showmanship as Pacific Rim if you do it in Mexico or Spain. So depending on the scale of the story, depending on if you need to protect the production value and spectacle or if you need to protect the content and quirkiness of the story, you go from one (end of the) scale to another.

George Clooney is on the market

George Clooney is back on the market — and apparently he has been for longer than people think. Clooney and girlfriend Stacy Keibler have reportedly parted ways and have been trying to keep the split under wraps for as long as possible, according to Radar Online.

"They did break up," a source says, noting that the split was "amicable" and "due to schedule, nothing more." Clooney and Keibler have been spending time apart the last two months while dodging breakup rumours. "It's been slowly falling apart for awhile," a source tells Us Weekly. "Stacy knew George was not the man to settle down with."

Carrey apologizes for comments, not for position

Jim Carrey is still against assault rifles and won't be promoting his next film, the bullet-ridden Kick-Ass 2, but he is at least learning to play nice.

"Assault rifle fans, I do not agree with you, nor do I fear you, but I do love you and I'm sorry that in my outrage I called you names. That was wrong," the outspoken actor posted to Twitter. "By the way, I don't need a crisis manager, just a conscience. Calling people names is inappropriate, but my position on assault weapons hasn't changed."

Nick Lachey sings for his dinner

Nick Lachey turned up the heat during a brief tour stop in New York on Monday to help launch a viral advertising campaign for Wendy's new Pretzel Burger.

The '90s heartthrob, back on tour with a reunited 98 Degrees, gave an intimate performance at a Midtown Wendy's, singing songs based on some tweets about the burger chain's latest creation. Yes, you read that correctly.

"It's not the easiest thing to write a song out of tweets," Lachey said about Monday night's performance. The song he created especially for this event? "Pretzel Buns I Am a Fan... Hashtag." That is literally what he sang. (The Word really wants to know what his paycheck was for this. Let's hope it wasn't just in Pretzel Burgers, even though he admitted that he's "a huge pretzel guy.")

Lachey was right back on the road after the event to prepare for the West Coast leg of the tour. Now 39, life on the road comes with different responsibilities for Lachey and his wife Vanessa, who are bringing their newborn son, Camden, along for the ride.

"It's different, but it's cool to come off stage and know your family is there and your son is sleeping in a crib on the bus," he said. "In a lot of ways it's a much cooler dynamic just having the opportunity to spend time with them and the opportunity to share those memories. It's a lot more meaningful than to be out on your own." METRO

HUNDREDS OF MIND BLOWING SHOWS

JULY 31 - AUGUST 5
HALIFAX WATERFRONT

From far and wide, the True North is Amazing TV

The Amazing Race.

The hugely popular reality TV show is coming north of the border with a Canadian edition

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

Canada is finally getting its own version of The Amazing Race.

Helming the show is host and Olympic athlete Jon Montgomery.

What made you want to be the host?

It intimidated me and scared me and I like that. As people we learn the most when we challenge ourselves, when we live outside our comfort zone.

What do you bring to the show?

Just an aspect of being myself. I think that's what was perhaps endearing at the 2010 Games. Just being someone who Canadians identified as being uniquely Canadian, being honest, being you, drinking beer. A big beer. If people identify me as an average Joe Canadian, then that's something I am really proud of. I set lofty goals for myself, but I am just an average guy getting it done.

The cast of Canada's Amazing Race. HANDOUT

Did you have any input into the roadblocks or detours?

They didn't pick my brain. I was simply tasked with being the host. But in the role I got to explain and do all the challenges. I demonstrate them. That's what will be different from Phil's (original series host Phil Keoghan) role and my role.

How long did the filming take? How many legs?

It was three weeks, every day. I believe 10 episodes in total. Each episode isn't just a day; they can span a couple of days. There were crazy hours just like in the U.S. one. People are fighting tooth and nail to get across this country.

What surprised you most about Canada?

Lots of places I didn't know about. We experienced a desert, mountains in places that I didn't expect to see them. At every stop there was some element of surprise. And I considered myself to be a pretty knowledgeable guy about our country.

Can you tell me one place the show went?

I can tell you we took a great many planes and automobiles to get from coast to coast to coast.

You said coast three times?

We do go north. If there is a Canadian out there wondering if they will see an aspect of their area of the country in this TV show, the answer is — yes!

1. Place tuna in a bowl along with soy sauce, Mirin, 1 1/2 tsp lemon juice, ginger, garlic, wasabi and sesame seeds. Let marinate in the refrigerator for a minimum of 15 minutes

Ingredients

- 8 oz raw sushi grade tuna finely diced
- 1 tbsp low sodium soy sauce
- 1 tbsp Mirin (sweet Chinese wine)
- 1 1/2 tsp lemon juice
- 1/2 tsp minced ginger
- 1/2 tsp minced garlic

Keep tabs on your triumphs for when your dream job appears

Suddenly seeking CV. Need an updated resumé ASAP? A spreadsheet of your latest skills will make building one a breeze

JESSICA CRUZ
TalentEgg.ca

Do you ever find yourself scrambling to fix your resumé to meet the deadline? Do you have trouble tailoring your skills to job descriptions?

Or perhaps you accidentally deleted experience from the last version of your resumé that could be relevant to a new job you just found.

Applying for jobs, compiling resumé and writing cover letters consumes a lot of time. Keeping a "master list" of your accomplishments will help you organize skills, experience and activities that could come in handy for future job applications.

Let's say a new job comes up that requires social media and written communication skills. Here's how a database can locate, sort, and cultivate fast resumé points:

First, create a spreadsheet in a program like Microsoft Excel or Google Drive and add tab sections for various aspects of your career, such as skills, work and volunteer experience, education, references, contacts, etc.

Tabs help organize different sections and keep them all in one document.

Skills and experience

Place your volunteer experience and work experience in separate columns. Sort them chronologically with as much detail as you can remember. If you're just starting, copy and paste the relevant experience from existing resumé drafts. This database will be a great source for skills and experiences for future resumé and

Cover letters

Most jobs still require cover letters. Are you looking for relevant experience that relates to a job listing?

- Your master list will outline everything you need to plug in to match the requirements! Choose wisely, spruce up your sentences and you're ready to apply.

cover letter content.

Education

The education tab sorts out your schools, awards and related extra-curricular activities. Hopefully you will begin to see correlations between this information and the jobs you're applying for, and decide whether certain details will be added to each resumé.

References and contacts

Emails and business cards

often pile up or get thrown away. Having each person's contact information in a spreadsheet can help you keep track of who they are, how you met them, what you discussed, the last time you contacted them and more.

Social media tools like LinkedIn keep professional connections updated, but it's always good to have a backup space with additional context. Tabs in one spreadsheet are a great way to organize these contacts.

Sorting out the information may take time, but it will make resumé-making and the application process a little less stressful in the future.

A reference and contact list will keep you in the loop of contacts that can connect you to the right people or the right job.

TALENTEGG.CA IS CANADA'S LEADING JOB SITE AND ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADUATES.

Keeping a database of your skills and experience becomes especially helpful when you are applying for more than one type of job and building separate resúmes for each one. ISTOCK

MacKinnon signs deal with Avs

NHL. With bonuses, contract worth more than $11M over three years

andrew.rankin@metronews.ca

The Halifax Mooseheads' Nathan MacKinnon signed a three-year, entry-level contract with the Colorado Avalanche, the team announced on Tuesday afternoon.

Terms of the deal were not disclosed, but according to capgeek.com, the contract, including bonuses, is valued at $11.325 million over three years.

The 17-year-old Cole Harbour native was the Avalanche's No. 1 pick at the NHL draft on June 30.

Joe Sakic, the Avalanche's executive vice-president of hockey operations, expressed his excitement over the signing in a team release.

"We are happy to have Nathan under contract and anxious to see him at training camp," he said. "His presence will bring additional speed and talent to our team, as well as a lot of excitement to our fans."

In the same release, MacKinnon said he was thrilled about taking the next step in his hockey career.

"The signing of this first NHL contract represents for me another step towards becoming a professional hockey player," MacKinnon said. "I am excited and thrilled to have been drafted by the Avalanche, and I am already working very hard in order to be ready phys-

Mac's contract

The value of Nathan MacKinnon's contract per season, according to capgeek.com:

- NHL salary: $925,000 (maximum allowed under league rookie-scale rules)
- Performance bonuses: $2.85 million
- Signing bonuses: $92,500
- Cap hit: $3,775,000

ically and mentally for training camp."

MacKinnon arrived at the team's development camp in Denver on Monday.

MacKinnon is coming off a championship season where he led the Mooseheads to their first Quebec Major Junior Hockey League title and first Memorial Cup championship. He was named MVP of the 2013 Memorial Cup after recording a tournament-high 13 points in only four games.

Herd's Ryan in mix at Flyers' camp

Halifax Mooseheads' Andrew Ryan is among 31 players looking to make an impression on Philadelphia Flyers brass at the club's development camp this week.

The four-day event started on Monday in Philadelphia and includes all of the team's 2013 NHL draft picks, including first-rounder Samuel Morin and second-round pick Robert Hagg.

Ryan is among only five invitees at the camp who are not Flyers prospects.

Ryan, a 19-year-old undrafted forward, is entering his fourth season with the Herd. In 56 regular-season games last year, Ryan scored 21 goals and added 18 assists. He went on to collect nine points in the Mooseheads' 17-game President Cup clinching run. METRO

Halifax's Black narrowly misses podium finish

Halifax's Ellie Black strikes a pose on Tuesday during her floor routine in the women's all-around final at the 27th summer university games in Kazan, Russia. The 2012 Olympian finished just off the podium in fourth place. She'll be looking to medal on Wednesday when she competes in the finals for vault, beam and floor.

NHL. Birch Hill's Sill strikes deal to return to Penguins' AHL affiliate

Zach Sill will be back in black and gold this hockey season.

The 25-year-old native of Birch Hill inked a new one-year contract with the Pittsburgh Penguins, the team announced on Tuesday.

The two-way deal is worth $550,000 at the NHL level.

The six-foot, 202-pound forward is fresh off his fourth season with the American Hockey League's Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Penguins. He scored four goals and added five assists in 57 games last season and added a pair of goals and assists in 15 Calder Cup playoff contests.

A fan favourite because of his intense and physical play, Sill missed a significant amount of time early in the season with an injury.

He posted his best numbers in 2010-11 with 11 goals and 19 assists in 80 games and a plus-16 rating.

Sill is a former member of the Truro Bearcats who finished his junior eligibility with a two-year stay with the QMJHL's Moncton Wildcats. TRURO DAILY NEWS

Hockey. Niedermayer, Chelios amongst five-member class to be inducted in November Scott Niedermayer and Chris Chelios won four Norris Trophies and seven Stanley Cups between them, becoming two of the elite NHL defence-men of their era.

Chelios needed a "lucky break" or two to make it from improbable beginnings in Chicago, while Niedermayer always seemed destined to be a star. They shared the spotlight Tuesday, headlining the 2013 class of the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Niedermayer and Chelios made it in their first year of eligibility. They'll be inducted with forward Brendan Shanahan, Team Canada defenceman Geraldine Heaney and coach Fred Shero.

"I was part of one era,

Chelios' challenge

played in the NHL."

Chris Chelios, who had trouble making teams as a teenager and moved with his family from Chicago to San Diego before finally getting an opportunity with the Moose Jaw Canucks at age 17.

I think Chris has probably been part of a few," Niedermayer joked. "The one thing that I do remember playing against Chris was he was one of the toughest guys to play against, even as a defenceman. He was always giving me a hard time on the ice, making life miserable. Hopefully in November it's not the same when we get to Toronto."

Niedermayer had 172 goals and 568 assists in 1,263 games and won four Stanley Cups, three with the New Jersey Devils and one with the Anaheim Ducks. He won the Norris Trophy in 2003-04 and the Conn Smythe with Anaheim in 2007.

"He made it look so easy," Chelios said of Niedermayer. "I have all the respect in the world for Scott playing against him."

Chelios wound up playing 23 full seasons and parts of three more, winning the Norris Trophy three times.

Shanahan recorded 656 goals and 698 assists and won three Stanley Cups and an Olympic gold medal.

Heaney, already in the International Ice Hockey Federation Hall of Fame, becomes the third female player elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Fred Shero, who died in 1990, won two cups as coach of the expansion-era Philadelphia Flyers.

Man says ex-NFL star admitted to killing victim

Documents show a man linked to the murder case against former New England Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez told police Hernandez admitted firing the fatal shots.

Carlos Ortiz reportedly told Massachusetts investigators that another man, Ernest Wallace, said Hernandez admitted shooting Odin Lloyd in an industrial park near Hernandez's Massachusetts home.

The documents were filed in court by the Miramar, Fla., police department to justify a search of Wallace's home in that city.

The documents also say that while investigating Lloyd's killing, police did searches in Bristol, Conn., that turned up a vehicle wanted in connection with a July 2012 double homicide in Boston.

Police say the vehicle had been rented in the name of Hernandez.

Raptors bringing Hansbrough to Toronto, reports say

The Toronto Raptors signed physical power forward Tyler Hansbrough to a multi-year contract on Tuesday, according to multiple reports.

The deal isn't expected to be announced until Wednesday when NBA teams can officially sign players after the league's moratorium on player business and next season's salary cap is set.

Hansbrough became an unrestricted free agent when the Indiana Pacers opted not to re-sign the 27-year-old after four seasons with the club. He averaged 8.9 points and 4.7 rebounds over those four years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

UFC. Jones chalks up Silva's upset loss to karma

At first, Jon 'Bones' Jones put it down to the "war gods." Then, upon further review, he pointed the finger at karma.

Either way someone made Anderson 'The Spider' Silva pay for disrespecting Chris 'The All-American' Weidman in the cage Saturday night, according to Jones.

Silva's loss has proved to be Jones' gain.

The UFC's light-heavyweight champion has taken over as No. 1 in the MMA organization's pound-for-pound fighter rankings in the wake of Silva's upset loss to Weidman.

Silva, an icon in the sport who had won all 16 of his previous UFC fights, fell off his pedestal with a thud after clowning his way to a loss.

As he has done in previous fights, the Brazilian middleweight champion dropped his hands and invited his opponent to hit him. This time, the 38-year-old Silva's reflexes failed him and Weidman connected, felling him before finishing him off on the ground with a few blows.

Jones managed to praise and bury Silva at the same time when the topic came up at Tuesday's news conference to promote his September UFC 165 title defence in Toronto against Sweden's Alexander 'The Mauler' Gustafsson.

Jon 'Bones' Jones THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I think that Anderson Silva is a magnificent fighter. I think that he has an extraordinary gift," Jones said. "I think he's got to the point where he really believes in his gift and he's comfortable with his gift."

"And he abuses his gift. He disrespected the gift by disrespecting his opponent."

Jones, 25, noted that martial arts is built around honour, integrity and treating people with respect. Jones is coming off a first-round win over Chael Sonnen at UFC 159 in April during which he broke his big toe.

The 2014 Chevy Silverado

ALL PHOTOS WHEELBASEMEDIA.COM

Review. Chasing the Ford 150 means adding in more of everything that truckers want

MALCOLM GUNN
wheelbasemedia.com

In pickup parlance the chase isn't just on, it never really stops. With the arrival of the 2014 Chevrolet Silverado, the pace is definitely quickening.

In 2012, 265,000 domestic and foreign-based 1500, 2500 and 3500-series pickups were sold in Canada and 40 per cent belonged to Ford. GM's Silverado/Sierra models finished solidly in second place, ahead of Chrysler's Ram and well ahead of the Toyota Tundra and Nissan Titan.

With the all-new Silverado 1500-series, Chevrolet appears to have done its homework and paid close attention to what buyers are looking for to haul and tow their stuff. There are more powerful engines as well as improvements and upgrades in nearly every other category you could imagine.

Behind the tailgate, the handy Corner Step bumper has recessed footholds that, combined with built-in handholds inside the box, make accessing the bed much easier.

The dashboard and control panel that houses the optional eight-inch touch screen are positioned in a tidy pod for easy viewing and all of the oversized knobs and switches are work-glove-friendly and clearly marked.

All body styles — regular,

2014 Chevrolet Silverado
• Type. Two- /four-door, rear-/four-wheel-drive full-size pickup
• Engines (hp). 4.3-litre OHV V6 (285); 5.3-litre OHV V8 (355); 6.2-litre OHV V8 (420)
• Transmissions. Six-speed automatic.
• Base price (incl. destination) $27,150

Design

The new Silverado bears more than a passing resemblance to the outgoing model. In front, the twin stacked headlights remain, but the grille is now much more prominent and tougher looking. As well, the hood and fenders bulge out more aggressively than before.

Fuel economy

The transmission for all is a six-speed automatic. The result, at least for the more muscular V6, is a significant fuel economy improvement in city and highway driving (best guess of 12.0 l/100 km in the city and 7.8 on the highway, compared to 14.1/10.0 for the previous V6).

Direct injection

All three powerplants feature direct injection, which tailors the fuel load for the task at hand. They also have continuously variable valve timing (which allows in more fuel and air depending on the power needs) and cylinder deactivation that cuts off up to half the cylinders in light load and cruise situations.

extended Double Cab (now featuring front-hinged rear doors with outside handles) and four-door Crew Cab — are attached to a reworked frame with more high-strength steel, extra bracing for stiffness and improved body mounts that help isolate road noise and vibration.

The revised suspension places the wheels on each axle farther apart with a goal to improve overall ride and stability.

For 2014, Chevrolet has made a few changes to the Silverado's box size/cab combinations. Now you can order the Crew Cab with a longer 80-inch (200-centimetre) bed as well as the standard 68-inch (175-centimetre) version.

Perched between the frame rails is a choice of three new all-aluminum cam-in-block engines. The entry point is a 4.3-litre V6 that features the same displacement as the previous V6, but the output has significantly increased to 285 horsepower and 305 pound-feet of torque from 195/260. Optional is a 5.3-litre V8 with 355 horses and 383 pound-feet on tap, up from 315/335.

The High Country's plush interior and dash match anything that's on the market.

Later in the model year they'll be joined by an available 6.2-litre V8 rated at 420 horsepower and 440 pound-feet of torque, which shares its parts with the new Corvette sports car V8.

Chevrolet also likes to point out that it has managed to increase performance and reduce fuel consumption across the line without resorting to complex (and expensive) turbocharging. That's a direct shot at the Ford F-Series and its "Eco-boost" V6.

Of course you can order your Silverado as a stripped-down, rubber-matted V6 work rig with a $27,150 sticker, or head all the way up to the new and thoroughly tricked-out High Country 4x4 with a correspondingly high list price. It's a brand new trim level designed to keep well-to-do ranchers driving in the lap of luxury.

Whichever pickup matches your needs, know that Chevrolet has made the right changes for a more refined and fuel efficient Silverado to keep pace with Ford.

Canadians bought 883,667 car and trucks in the first half of 2013. Seems like a lot, but still less than the number of vehicles crashed in the movie trailer for Fast and Furious 6.

But if sales stay on the current pace, 2013 has a real chance to reach or surpass the record 1.73 million units sold in 2002.

Look, I'm no economist,

The Hyundai Elantra lies third in the nameplate charts during this bumper year for car sales. PROVIDED but I'm pretty sure the current strong demand says people really like the vehicles that are on the market right now, especially as we see the sales gains spread right across the board — all segments, all players.

And why wouldn't you like the new vehicles? There are fewer and fewer crap cars being produced and more and more good cars being produced. And with every new redesign or refresh, we seem to get another good bump of fuel economy, connectivity and style.

The usual suspects are battling it out on the top-selling nameplate list. We still buy an awful lot of pickup trucks.

We still like Chrysler's minivan, and we still like cars in the compact segment. We're so damn practical.

But Porsche just had its best first half of a year ever, and Jaguar sold a whopping 72 per cent more cars in the first half of 2013 than it did during the first half of 2012. So sports cars are on a roll too.

Dave Adams, president of the Global Automakers of Canada, the association of "import" based automakers, noted in a release, that "a high level of competition and attractive leasing and finance options continue to draw consumers into the new vehicle market."

So the deals are there too. Either way it was a robust spring selling season for sure. Look, I'm no weatherman/economist, but I'm pretty sure sales were also helped by all the rain we got this spring.

If your lawn looks good, you worry less about yard maintenance and more about good ways to spend your weekend, like car shopping. It's only a theory, yes, but it's backed up by no actual evidence whatsoever.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

If someone starts looking into your private affairs then you have every right to tell them to mind their own business. Don't be too forceful though or they may think you have something to hide and look even more.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You are in a restless mood at the moment and it's unlikely you will be in the same place when the Sun goes down. For some reason, your surroundings no longer excite you.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You will be in a charitable mood today and there is nothing wrong with that, but if you are going to give money away make sure it is to genuinely worthy causes.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You may not be able to explain the way you feel but that's probably no bad thing. If you dwell too much on your emotions today, you won't get much work done. Make sure your head rules your heart.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

It seems you don't know whether to control your desires or indulge them. From past experience, you know that if you hold back, you are likely to regret it later on. Have fun.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You may want to sit on the fence in some kind of domestic dispute but the planets won't let you. Like it or not, you have to choose sides and hope it all works out amicably in the end. Don't worry, it will.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Take your pleasures where you find them and don't worry that some of those you live and work with don't seem able to get much joy out of life. You can't change their outlook.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Things are going so well for you at the moment that you may be a bit worried. Will fate turn round and slap you down? No. Though if you start thinking that way, you increase the chances of it occurring.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Why are you letting minor matters assume major importance, at least in your mind? Whatever the reason you need to snap out of it — not later but right now.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may be the kind of person who prefers the tried and trusted. But the more you chop and change and move around today, the more fun you will have. If travelling on your own, you won't be alone for long.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

It's good that you are easygoing and it's good that you like to help people but don't forget that not everyone thinks and feels the same way. Be on your guard today as someone may try to cheat you.

♓ Pisces

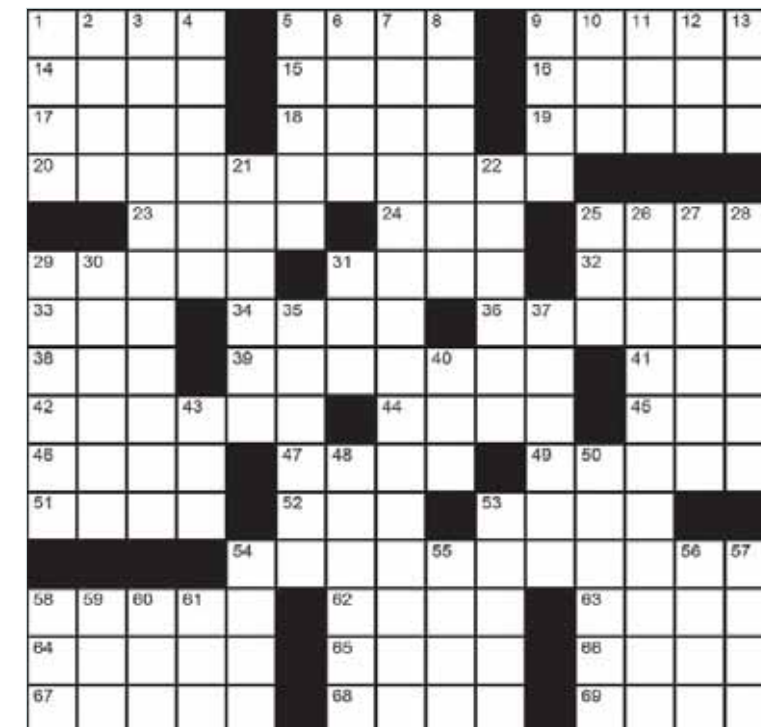

Feb. 20 - March 20

Don't bother asking friends for an opinion on what you are doing. It's unlikely they will be honest with you. The reason you are asking is that you have doubts yourself. SALLY BROMPTON
